

Trial Support Technology

Complex, high-stakes litigation comprises a very significant part of the practice mix at White and Williams. As a benefit to our lawyers and clients, the firm has worked over the past decade to develop an in-house team of specialists whose sole purpose is to support the sophisticated technology needs of today's trial presentations. These trial and litigation support services include:

- Trial Exhibit Preparation: We create trial presentations that win over both judges and juries, including document displays, diagrams, graphics, timelines, calendars, charts and audio/visual presentations
- Onsite Courtroom Support: Our experienced courtroom staff can conduct multimedia trial presentations using our audio visual equipment and trial presentation software and hardware. We also maintain "mobile" war rooms to support attorneys outside of the Courtroom
- Complex Document Discovery Management and Support: We assist our clients in meeting discovery requests in a timely and cost-effective manner. We provide assistance with the data collection, document review and document production using customized litigation management systems.
- E-Discovery Project Management and Support: We assist our attorneys and clients in navigating through the complexities of the Electronic Discovery Reference Model (EDRM) process, focusing on the collection of documents through presentation phases.

Our in-house team allows us to provide trial and litigation support services at a lower cost with more control over the quality and sophistication of services and greater flexibility to react to the inevitable last-minute changes.
