

Hostile Work Environment Claims in Today's Workplace

The Temple 10-Q | November 15, 2017

By: Nancy Conrad and Tanya Salgado

The importance of workplace policies targeted at preventing and addressing workplace discrimination and harassment cannot be overstated. The EEOC has emphasized the importance of employer training and effective policies in its proposed Enforcement Guidance on Unlawful Harassment. Preventing systemic harassment has also been reaffirmed as a priority in the EEOC's Strategic Enforcement Plan for 2017-2021. The goal is to eliminate harassment and the EEOC has identified "prevention is the best cure" as the guiding principal. To this end, employers are urged to establish effective and accessible workplace policies, as well as effective harassment training in the workplace.

Read more.

This correspondence should not be construed as legal advice or legal opinion on any specific facts or circumstances. The contents are intended for general informational purposes only, and you are urged to consult a lawyer concerning your own situation and legal questions.