

Duke Law & Tech Lab: Live Session

Duke University | August 2, 2019

Founded in 2017, the Duke Law Tech Lab is a program of the Duke Center on Law & Tech at Duke University School of Law. Their mission is to help your startup thrive by building community among legal tech entrepreneurs and providing access to high-quality content needed by many early stage founders and teams who may be leading their first entrepreneurial venture.

Each year, teams are selected for participation in the program. The program provides a platform for the teams to engage with legal tech leaders, law firms, justice system stakeholders, student interns, angel investors, venture capitalists, innovators, influencers, and others from Duke University's extensive network.

Richard Borden and Tania Soris will be guest appearing at a live session on Friday, August 2nd to provide tips for some of the participating tech start-ups.
