

The Ninth Annual Coverage College Features True-to-Life Case Study

October 8, 2015

White and Williams' Coverage College® continues to grow, with more than 600 students attending the ninth annual premier educational program for the insurance industry. Coverage College provides insurance professionals the opportunity to participate in diverse curriculum of insurance liability and coverage topics.

The College offered 12 Masters Classes on topics including medical marijuana, reinsurance, arbitrating and mediating complex disputes, catastrophic injury events, privacy and data breach litigation and damages. New this year, the College's General Sessions centered upon a true-to-life case study that covered a wide-range of coverage and liability issues that were discussed throughout the day. Through a variety of pre-recorded videos and live scenarios, the case played out directly in front of students culminating in a mock-trial that showcased the applications of insurance coverage law and current litigation trends. Students were the jurors and cast their votes directly from cell phones.

Throughout the event, students networked with one another and the College's ten exhibiting sponsors. The College concluded with a cocktail reception where students spun the "White and Williams Prize Wheel" for a chance to win $25,000.

Attorneys

John S. Anooshian
Michelle D. Coburn
Robert G. Devine
Michael E. DiFebbo
David E. Edwards
Michael W. Horner
Michael O. Kassak
William D. Kennedy
Edward M. Koch
Sean P. Mahoney
Randy J. Maniloff
Timothy S. Martin
Anthony L. Miscioscia
Joshua A. Mooney
Michael S. Olsan
Frank J. Perch, III
Justin E. Proper
Daryn E. Rush
Robert F. Walsh
Victor J. Zarrilli
David R. Zaslou

Practice Areas

Appellate
Catastrophic/Excess Liability
Class Actions
Commercial Litigation
Construction and Surety
Insurance Coverage and Bad Faith

Product Liability

Reinsurance

Transportation

