OVERVIEW

Andrew is an associate in the Tax and Estates Group. He helps individuals and families plan for the future by drafting wills, trusts (including special needs trusts), powers of attorney, health care directives, and pre/post-nuptial agreements. Andrew routinely advises executors, trustees, beneficiaries, and guardians in all aspects of trust and estate administration. His clients depend on him to navigate complex family dynamics to efficiently and empathetically resolve conflict. He is also proud to maintain an active pro bono caseload.

Prior to joining White & Williams, Andrew worked for a boutique trusts and estates firm and for the City of Philadelphia Law Department in the Tax & Revenue Unit. He also clerked for two Pennsylvania trial court judges.

During law school, Andrew was the Executive Articles and Symposium Editor for the Temple Political & Civil Rights Law Review. He also served as a court-appointed mediator for small claims and landlord-tenant disputes.

Andrew lives in Philadelphia with his wife and son. In his spare time he enjoys live music, cooking, and reading classic and contemporary sci-fi.
